Tree of Knowledge

Permanently encased in stone and overlooking the north and south of the campus are symbols of the tree of knowledge. The various parts of the tree symbolize some particular phase of education. The trunk represents education. The branches depict every kind of learning. Included are branches of Pure and Applied Mathematics; Natural, Physical, and Social Sciences; and Practical, Fine, and Language Arts. Each branch divides into other specialized fields. For example, language arts separates into twigs of English, Spanish, German, Latin, and every language known to man. The leaves represent the lifeline of the tree; without these the tree cannot live, grow, and prosper. The leaves are the teachers, historians, mathematicians, authors, and other men of knowledge. The fruits of the tree symbolize each individual ability and aim. The tree signifies education and man's mind, both of which if tended properly will produce excellent fruits.

Each individual tree has been planted and given nourishment, but at this stage of our education it has just begun to grow. The trunk, branches, twigs, and leaves must be given an opportunity to develop into mature fruits.

VHS Broadens

Its Scope of Knowledge

upper center left

The year of 1963-64 might be called "The Year of Improvements." One of these developments was the landscaping of the center courtyard and the laying of a gravel walk. This project was sponsored by the Student Council.

upper center right

Mr. Dixon performs an essential task at VHS. The maintenance staff keeps the school and grounds in good order so that an atmosphere conducive to study will prevail.

upper right

Kay Dowdell searches through her economics text to find the answer for a question put forth by her instructor. One of the most important experiences of high school education is learning to find knowledge for one's self.

middle left

During the summer, the science department began the installation of its new chemistry and physics laboratories. Their completion in October made available to the student the latest in equipment and facilities and assisted him in the clearer conception of the sciences.

middle center

middle right

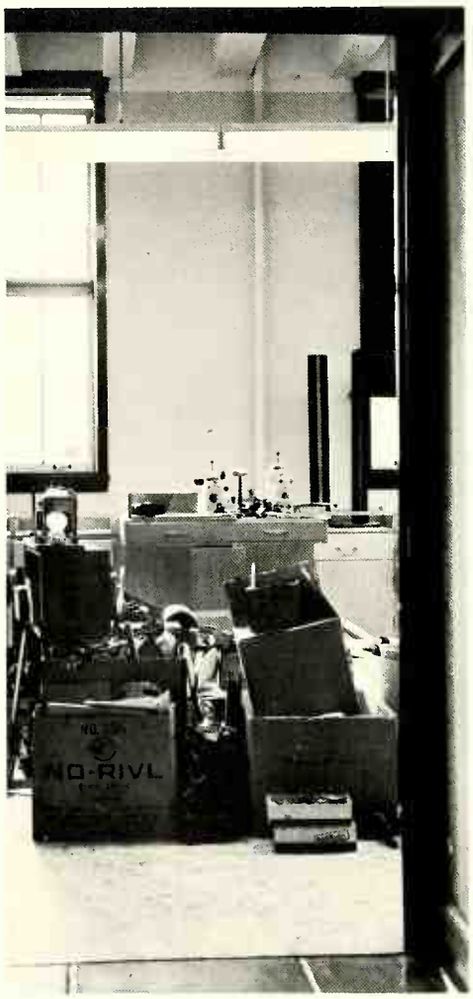
Judy Bowman and Barb Harvey cooperate in preparing for a welcoming party in honor of incoming sophomores as new members of the various organizations. Although gaining knowledge is of primary importance at VHS, fellowship is also a significant phase of a student's education.

lower left

This fall there was also much work to be done in the chemistry laboratory before its completion. Each group unit and individual locker had to be stocked with the necessary chemicals and equipment. After school the labs were left open for further experimentation by the especially interested students.

lower right

Mrs. Brunicon and Mrs. Walsh are kept busy preparing daily meals for the over 500 VHS students and teachers that eat hot lunches at school.



Early Phases of Knowledge are Initiated in the Classroom

upper left
Steve Johnson is all attention while one of his classmates gives a speech. The skills learned in this room will help the graduate throughout his later life.

upper center
Very different from the speech classroom, but as important is the choir room where Mr. Hurst strains for just the right note as his organization strives to reach perfection in its offerings.

upper right
Gesturing for emphasis, Mr. Gaston tries to clarify a point in the study of social studies. VHS students spent innumerable hours in the study of the required social studies courses in classes such a these.

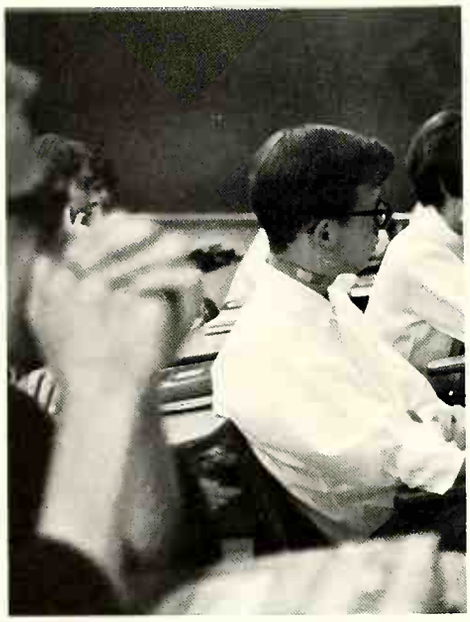
Chuck Brookover and Bob Armstrong confer on a point of an assignment during a library study hall illustrating that two heads are better than one. In some cases the library was used to continue the honor study hall program for VHS students.

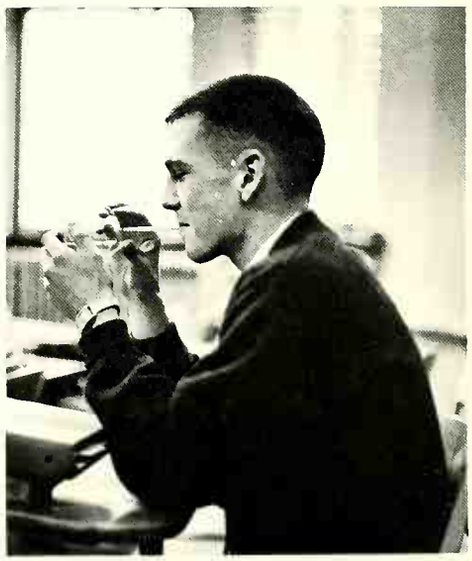
middle center
In a study hall period, Tom Copper conducts a "scientific experiment" in blowing bubbles to prove that the "learning devices" are not limited to paper, pencil, and textbook.

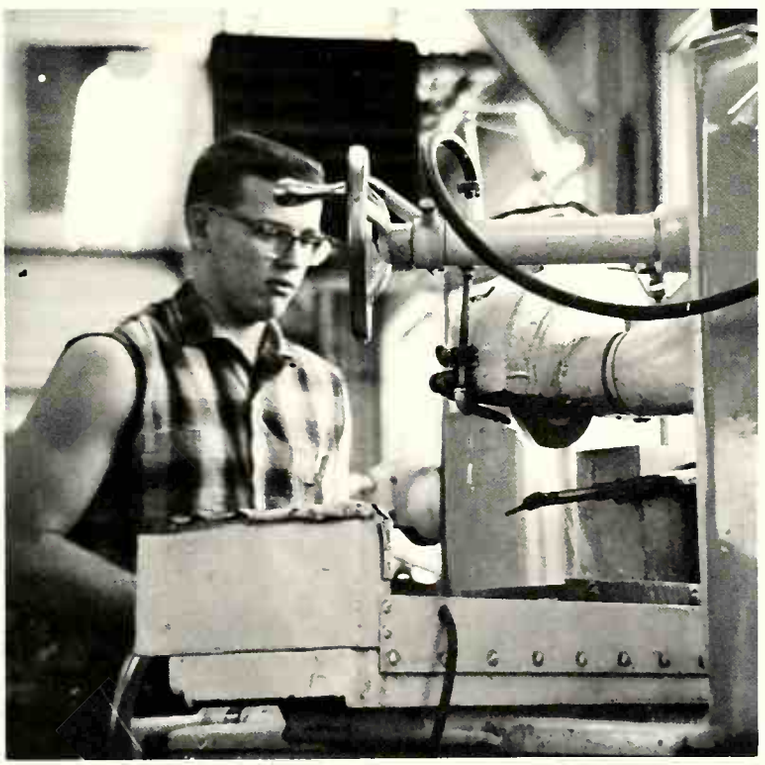
middle right
Totally engrossed, Marty Steinbach listens while a complicated physics concept is explained. The learning that takes place in the science classrooms is elaborated to result in a significant contribution to the future.

lower center
The typing classroom is the scene of many frustrations and accomplishments as students learn to type themes or business forms for future schoolwork or careers.

lower right
Symbolizing the diversity of classrooms in high school, Andy Fitzer works on a surface grinder. The industrial arts workshops are becoming increasingly important to this country's industrial future.







Students Live in a World of Fun and Sudden Sorrow

upper left
Folk singers Joe Peterson, Glenn Coble, and Bob Hildreth, entertain at the Y-Teen Dessert-for-Dads party.

Along with a grieving nation, VHS mourns the assassination of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy and flies the school flag at half-staff for thirty days. Students were in class on Friday, November 22, when they first heard the tragic news.

upper right
Carolyn Emerson waits in Mr. Henkel's office to consult him concerning her future occupation. Trips to the guidance office during study hall hours are familiar to most seniors at VHS.

lower left
VHS athletes and parents enjoy the carry-in supper highlighting the fall sports season. The sports banquet honored the football and cross country teams and the outstanding participants of each.

middle right
During the noon hours, boys engage in a brief but vigorous game of basketball in the gym.

lower center right
Jane Freeman searches the college bulletin shelves in the library for information about the college of her choice. The library supplies materials concerning a large number of U.S. colleges and universities.

lower right
Rollie Parsons pauses to polish one of the many trophies won by the athletes through the years. VHS claims three overflowing trophy cases.

Diviersified Components of Student Life

upper left
During one of her few quiet moments as a hall monitor, Ann Williamson hurriedly completes an assignment. Hall monitors were responsible for recording all movements to and from lockers during class hours.

upper center
The drinking fountain is a popular place during class breaks on hot school days. This "pause that refreshes" was often the cause of many trips to Mr. Mundy's office for tardy slips.

upper right
Mr. Falls finishes putting a new door frame on one of the front inside doors as VHS's program of improvement moves steadily onward.

middle left
Typical of many parts of the school, the discarded desks give the lower hall a look of organized confusion. Lockers line the hall and obsolete desks signify victims of progress.

Sue Dauberman and Linda Graham relish the "lunch of the day" and free-time out of class. Lunch provided time to keep up with the latest gossip and return to sanity.

John Marquardt and Doug Liggett study an assignment in the cafeteria during lunch hour. After a hot lunch, the cafeteria provided an atmosphere for cooperative study and a chance to complete daily lessons.

lower right
Roger Chapel continues the learning process out of the classroom by selecting a book for extra reading. Students are encouraged to read out of class in order to obtain a deeper insight into the course.

Students Become Conscious of Faces and Places in School

upper center left
Sue Rowen smiles inspite of an obvious handicap. Sue, the third of the band's majorettes, was not pictured because of a shattered ankle which kept ner in bed for one week and on crutches for eight.

upper center right
Buying bus tickets to the week's basketball game, Nancy Nielsen, Kris Karamesines, and Paula Domke support their team and Pep Club. Buses traveled to the away football and basketball games.

The north breezeway is blanketed with a mantle of snow as winter settles on VHS.

middle center right
As spring makes its debut, students return to the breezeway to enjoy a few minutes of sunshine and fresh air before returning to their academic studies.

lower right
As autumn departs, so does football and its excitement. The football field, bleachers, and VHS band parents' "Dog House" wait patiently under a cover of snow for another season.

Donna Huber punches a meal ticket during the fourth hour lunch. Students also helped in the kitchen by selling tickets, washing dishes, and serving food.

Diversified Occurences Culminate into School Year

upper center left
Ron Banks, a new student from Westville High School, fills out enrollment cards in Mr. Henkel's office as part of the enrollment process. This was repeated during the school year as the semester changed.

upper center right
Tina, a variety of breeds, lies in the sun waiting for school to be dismissed. She has become an unofficial mascot of VHS and a pet of students and teachers alike.

upper right
Sue Berrier takes advantage of extra time after school to consult Mrs. Inman about a home economics project. All teachers were available for extra assistance during the "eighth hour" from 3:00 to 4:00 in the afternoon.

"Boo" Krieger "hams it up" during the pep session preceeding the Crispus Attucks game. During the pep session each senior basketball team member was introduced before playing his last ome game.

At 2:45 the school buses begin to line up to take the students home. Many students depend upon the buses for transportation both to and from school.

middle center right
Dan Stolpe tries to fight off an "unidentified ailment" in the nurse's office under the supervision of Nancy Howe. Student nurses were on duty at all times to assist any pupil who became ill.

lower left
Mr. Sweet addresses a pep session after school on a game day. These pep sessions were held to raise school spirit through skits and speeches by the coaches and players.

The school parking lot, formerly the tennis courts, is filled everyday with students' cars. Approximately seventy-five private cars are used for transportation.

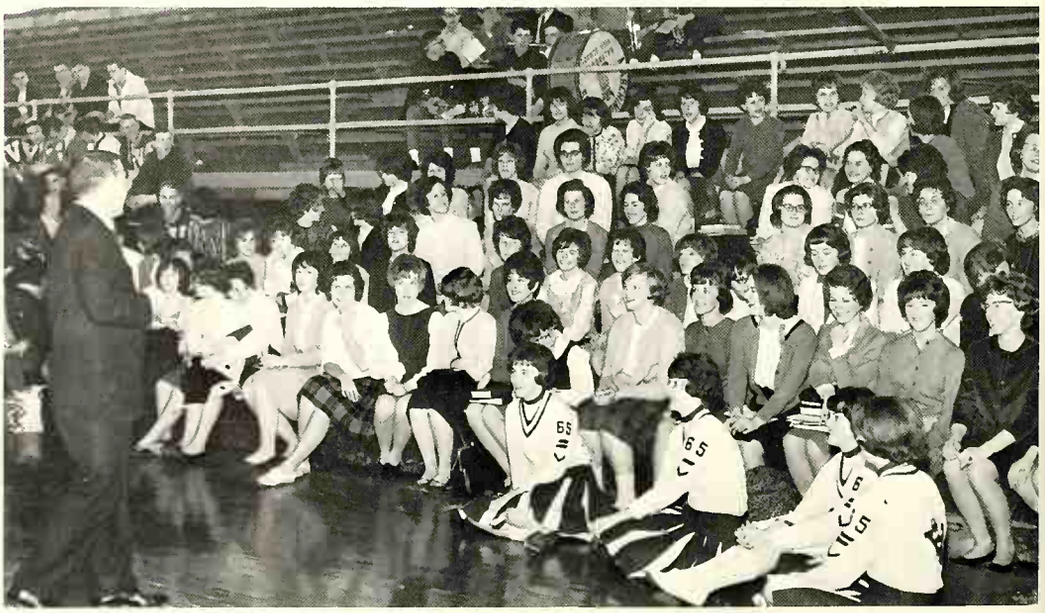
Mr. Stuber confers with students in the lower hall during the five minute class break.



Bicycles, Brawn, and Beauty Dominate Homecoming

upper left
Breaking all precedents, over forty senior girls stage their own parade the morning of homecoming. The girls arrived at school upon bicycles, rode around the school buildings twice, and went to their classes feeling that they had contributed a special extra to the spirit of the day.

Smiling through her tears, Beth Roby approaches the throne to be crowned 1963 Homecoming Queen by football co-captains Zane Cole and John Nicklas. The beauty of her coronation ceremonies softened the heartbreaking defeat of the Vikings at the hands of Hammond Tech.

upper center right
Eleanor Molengraft, princess, and Beth Roby, queen, grasp each other for support at the instant of the announcement of the princess, deciding the fortune of both.

upper right
Working feverishly the homecoming dance committee, headed by Eileen Koepke and Pam Whittler, toils to meet the mid-afternoon decorating deadline. The theme of this year's dance, "Roses," was carried out with rose centerpieces on the tables, a rose colored throne, and large portraits of the homecoming court mounted in paper rose buds on the east gym wall.

Following the coronation, the court and their escorts, senior football players, dance to the music of Ed Andrew's Band during the traditional court's dance.

lower right
The queen and her court pose for a formal portrait. They are: Jeanne Jopes, Nancy Lightcap, Princess Molengraft, Pat Kane, Bonnie Underwood, and Sue Shook. Sitting is Queen Roby with Chris Williams, scepter bearer, and Sheri Sweet, crown bearer.

VHS Sparkles with the Spirit of the Holiday Season

upper left

Nancy Young and Steve Randall pause during the Christmas dance given December 21 by the Y-Teens. The dance highlighted the holiday season. On the side walls of the gym, the theme, "The Night Before Christmas," was depicted with white silhouettes of Santa Claus' sleigh and reindeer flying over a peaceful country village.

Playing in front of a printed backdrop of "The Night Before Christmas," the Notables provide an enjoyable evening of music.

lower left

The grand march signaled the end of the Christmas dance. Y-Teens officers, Pat Kane and Jeanne Jopes, and their escorts led the well-dressed couples.

center right

The Student Council trimmed a Christmas tree in the upper hallway. This tree lended to the festive atmosphere of VHS during the week prior to the two week Christmas vacation.

upper right

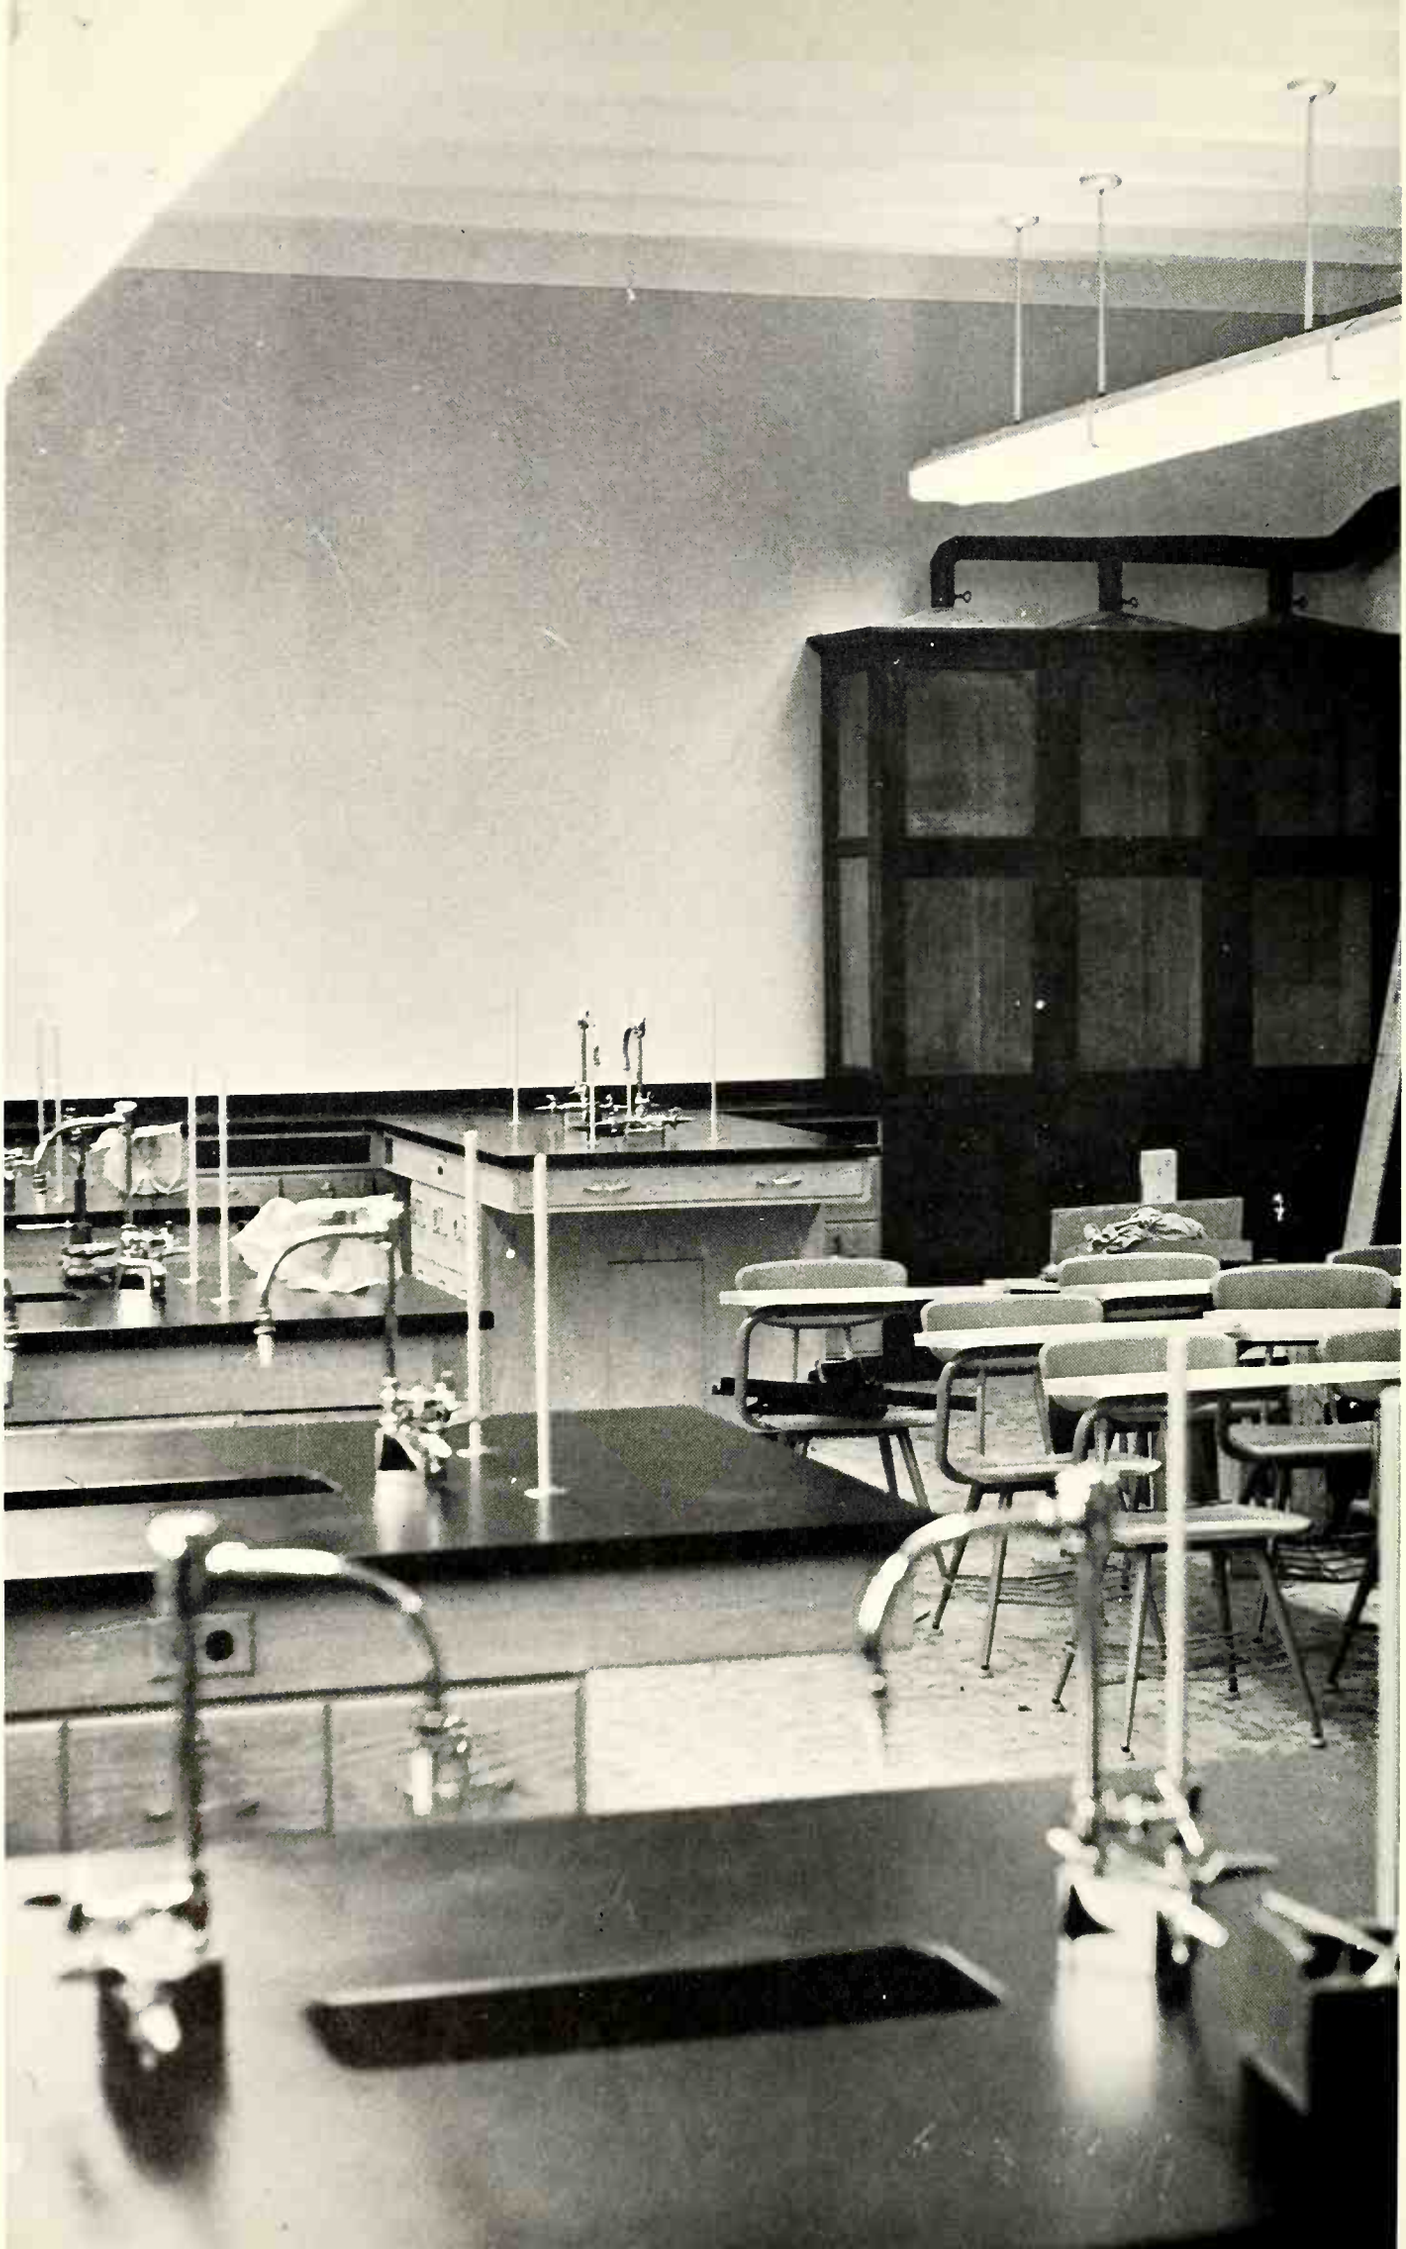
The holiday extended through lockers decorated with popcorn, tree ornaments, Christmas cards, and stockings as displayed by Janet Urschel and Katie Todd.

middle right

The Carolers, representatives of the VHS choir, tour the halls Thursday before the vacation. Later that day, the Carolers and the Troubadours, another madrigal group, sang Christmas songs for other public and parochial schools of Valparaiso.

lower right

Friday afternoon, December 20, the Student Council sponsored a Christmas convocation with both a gay and spiritual atmosphere. The Lemonlighters and groups of juniors and seniors sang, and senior readings were presented by individual students.



"Knowledge is Power"

Valparaiso High School's academic department strives to teach students not only knowledge in the form of isolated facts, but also as a foundation for future learning. Whether the individual continues formal education or prepares for a commercial or domestic career, the education of Valparaiso's students is based on the ideal that high school education is a beginning and a basis of continued learning.

The academic departments teach the students how to find needed data or information, how to develop an idea through further study, and how to put into effective use that which they already know. The VHS student learns that "Knowledge is Power."

Administrators Determine Current School Policies

middle

Valparaiso's policy-making and governing body is composed of Mr. Mann Spitler, Jr., president; Mrs. Gene Myers, vice-president; Dr. D. P. LaCount, treasurer; Mr. Joseph Durand, secretary; Mr. Preston Platt, member; and Mr. G. Warren Phillips, superintendent. The members are appointed every four years and rotate in these offices. The school board's most important function is to provide increased educational opportunities for all students.

lower left

This fall the school board was responsible for the installation of a cafeteria in the newly remodeled gymnasium at Benjamin Franklin Junior High School. This provides a hot lunch program at the junior high which serves approximately 250 students each day.

upper right

Administrating school policies, guiding curriculum development, directing personnel and finances, and representing our community in educational circles is only a summary of the many responsibilities of Mr. G. Warren Phillips, superintendent of Valparaiso Community Schools. He is also active in many local civic activities and in state educational organizations. Mr. Phillips has achieved national prominence as a member of the executive board of the American Association of High School Administrators. He is becoming internationally prominent through a recent trip abroad. In October 1963 he made a thirty-nine day tour of Sweden sponsored by the "Meet Modern Sweden Committee" in cooperation with the Swedish government. He accompanied eighty other superintendents from thirty-eight states as they traveled to Stockholm, Uppsala, Lapland, and Osterund. These superintendents discussed the educational systems of the two countries with Swedish officials.

lower right

Mr. King Telle as principal of VHS is vitally interested in all functions of the school. He strives to maintain the reputation of VHS throughout the state as a first class school academically and socially. Mr. Telle has been principal at VHS for seventeen years, during which time he has seen the building of a new addition, the introduction of television as a means of teaching, and the advent of space-age minded education. Besides carrying out his duties as principal, Mr. Telle coaches the golf team and enthusiastically supports all other sports.

Principals, Secretaries Perform Duties of School's Business

upper left
BETTY PRICE: Mrs. Price acts as the registrar of VHS, coordinates the various offices, compiles school records, and sends in textbook orders.

JANET TOFTE: Mrs. Tofte is in charge of the office work involved with the guidance department.

upper center right
THOMAS ROBERTS: Mr. Roberts came to the Valparaiso Community School System in 1943 as a teacher. He moved up gradually until in 1955 he was made director of buildings. Now his job entails directing school transportation. He also is vocation coordinator and substitute for the superintendent when he is absent for an extended period of time.

upper right
ISABELLE FRONICKE: Mrs. Fronicke, new this year to the school system, is in charge of keeping the books for the entire school system.

middle center right
ANITA CHILIAN: Miss Chilian came to VHS in August of 1963. She assists Mr. Mundy in his duties and keeps the attendance office girls busy.

middle right
GRACE RICHARD: Mrs. Richard's duties are to record the minutes of school board meetings and to serve as secretary to Mr. Phillips.

middle far right
DIANA CAVANAUGH: Mrs. Cavanaugh, also new to the VHS system, operates the switchboard and is a receptionist at the administration building.

lower left
JAMES MUNDY: In 1951 Mr. Mundy began his career in Valparaiso as the principal of both Banta and Columbia Elementary Schools. Five years later he became principal of Central Junior High School. In 1958 he became assistant principal at VHS. He is in charge of attendance, lockers, student activities, and Student Council.

lower right
ALFRED L. HENKEL: Mr. Henkel came to VHS 18 years ago as a full-time social studies teacher. In 1951 he was in charge of attendance,and the counseling of seniors, in addition to teaching a full schedule of classes. In 1955 the department of guidance was created headed by Mr. Henkel. His job now includes counseling seniors, compiling and reporting test scores, and keeping abreast with major developments in colleges across the country.

Outlining the Future, Opening the Door of Tomorrow

upper left

Mr. Charles Henry explains what life is like at Purdue University. To help graduating seniors make their final decisions about colleges, the guidance department brought representatives of various colleges to tell about expenses, admission requirements, and social life, and to answer student's questions. Some of the colleges represented this year at VHS were Butler, Indiana, Earlham, Rose Polytechnical Institute, and Beloit College.

Pat Morris stops to consult the guidance board concerning university "high school" days. The board also provides information about scholarships, jobs, and other general data.

upper center right

Mrs. Bauer helps Martha Edgecomb plan her future schedule for the next year at VHS. As a part of the upperclass guidance program, Mrs. Bauer and Mr. Sweet personally counseled junior and senior students.

upper right

To simplify the task of teacher and student distribution Mr. Henkel and Mrs. Tofte use the scheduling board. Each student has seven cards to correspond to the seven class hours. These cards are placed in the slot corresponding to that class hour and teacher.

Mr. Henkel advises Barb Knott about college and occupational choices. As a basis, he uses various test scores, such as NMQT, SAT, and CEEB, as well as the student's achievements and ability.

lower left

Mr. Hildreth consults scholarship information to aid college-bound senior students. He also helps Mr. Henkel in the monumental duty of counseling seniors, as well as helping all the juniors.

lower right

Aiding Mrs. Tofte in the guidance office are: Barb Knott, Olivia Henkel, Charlene Irvin, Penny Smurdon, Janet Hospers, Kay Dowdell, Carol Lammers, and Eleanor Molengraft.

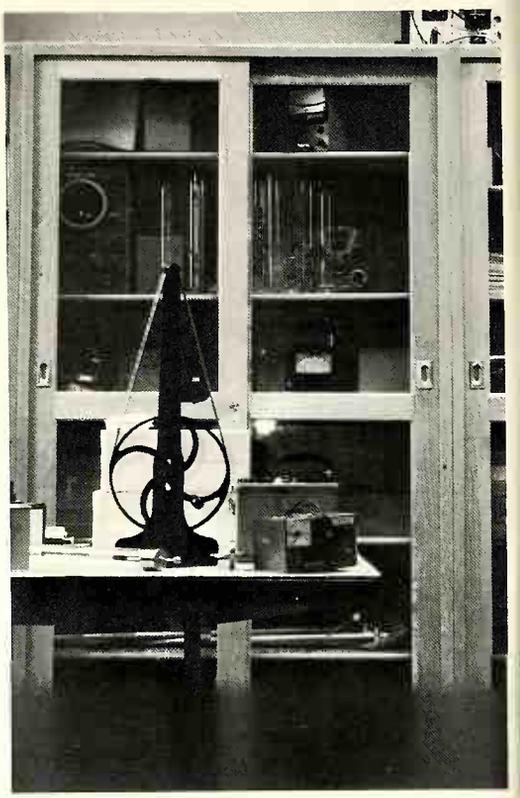
Inquiry and Discovery Prevail in Class and Lab



upper left
Symbolic of the scientific curiosity inherent in all human beings, two chemicals are poured together to produce a totally new substance. Repeating this process over and over, other new substances are discovered, and new horizons are developed as their use is envisaged.

Supplying all equipment necessary to perform the many and diverse physics experiments, this seemingly unimportant room is the center of all physics classes.

upper center right
Jon Oesting, totally engrossed in an advanced chemistry experiment, is typical of the dedication and drive of the more scientific-minded students. Third semester chemistry is a relatively new course added to the science curriculum and is primarily an analytic course.

middle center right
The basis of scientific knowledge is acquired through lectures and textbook study. VHS's lecture room provides these facilities in a pleasing atmosphere.

middle right
A bewildered physics student contemplates the use of the correct formulas — $s = v_i t + \frac{1}{2}gt^2$, $v_f = v_i + gt$, $v_f^2 = v_i^2 + 2gs$. Physics class is an endless array of such problems which frustrate and puzzle some students, but fascinate and motivate others.

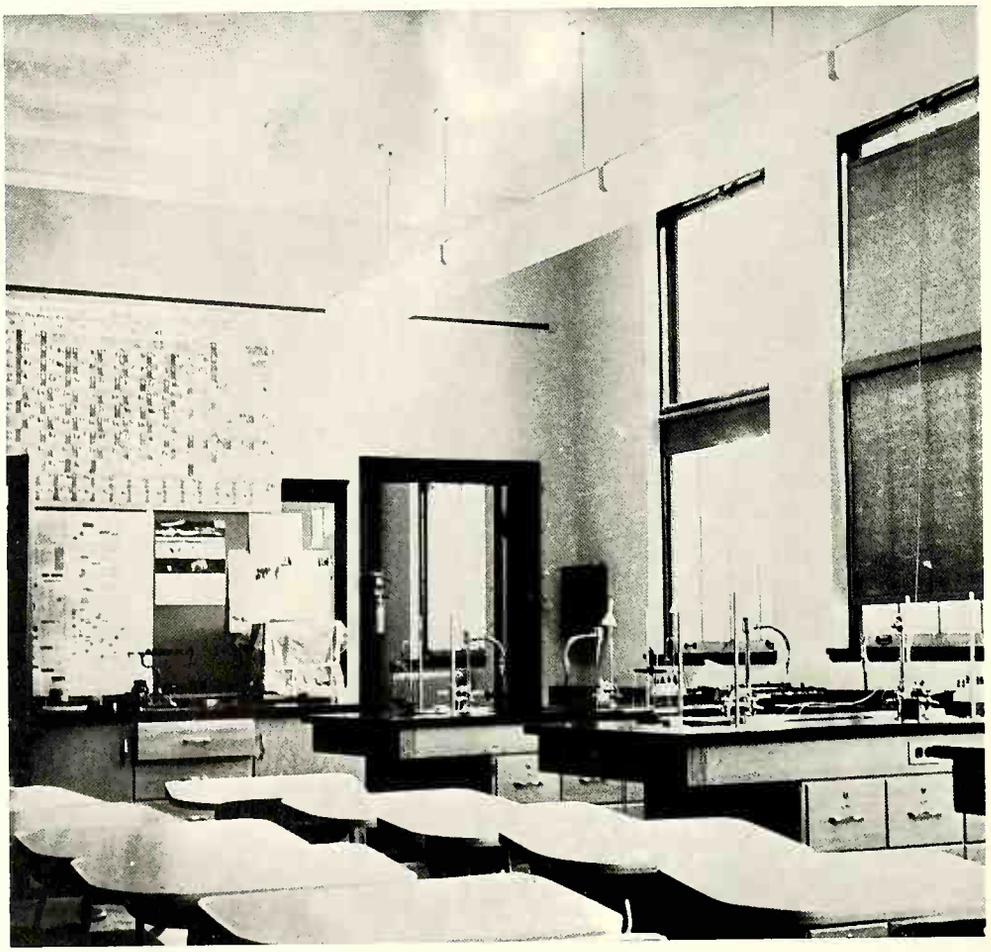
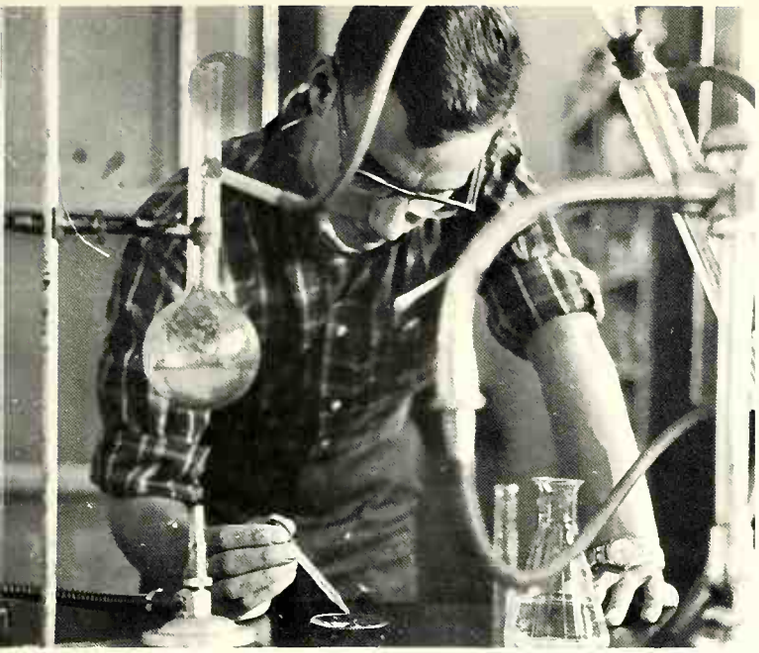
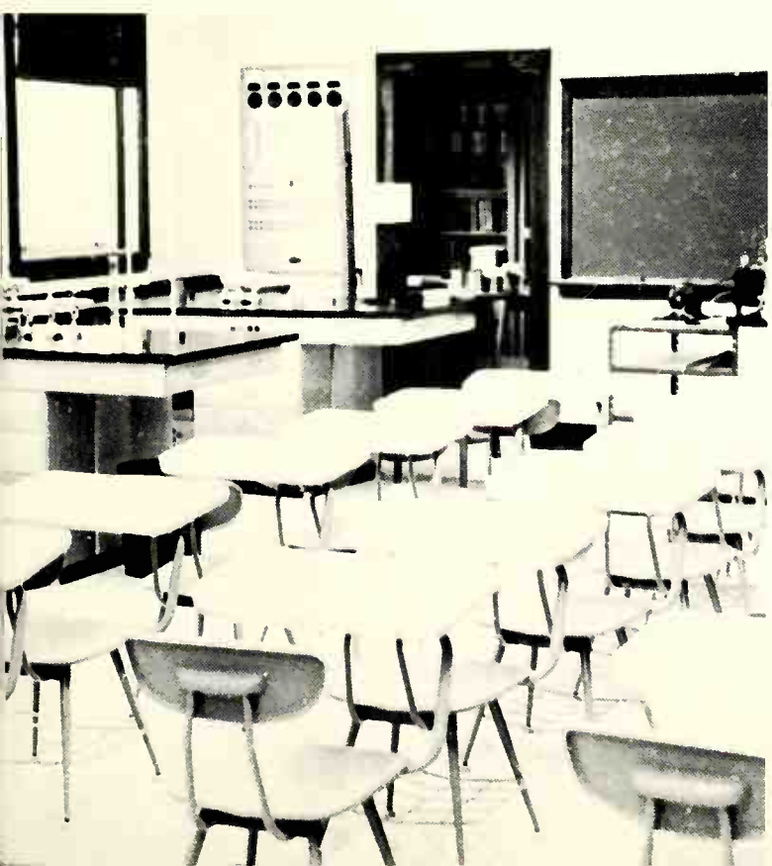
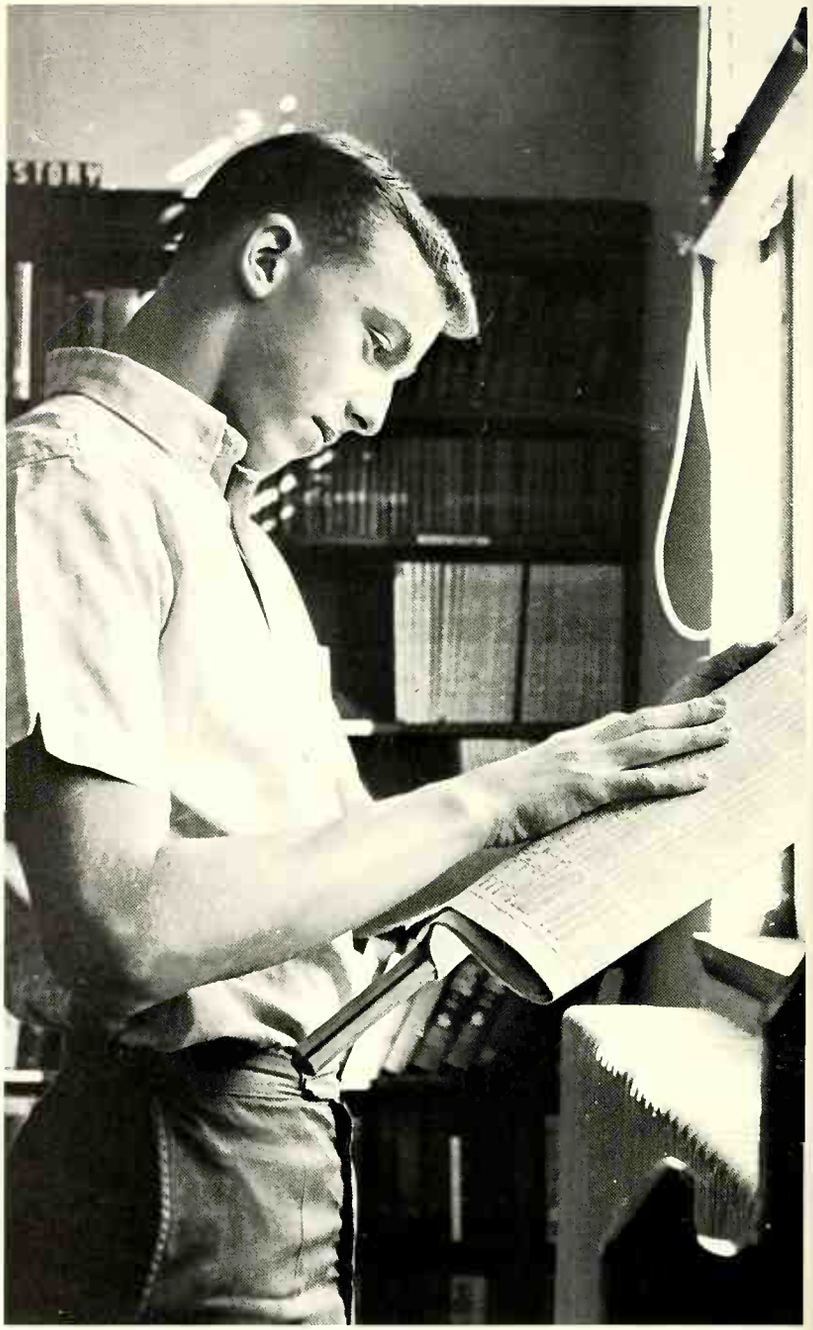
lower center right
To help science students perfect the theoretical fundamentals learned in the classroom, the chemistry and physics laboratories have been newly remodeled and installed with equipment valued at $16,000.

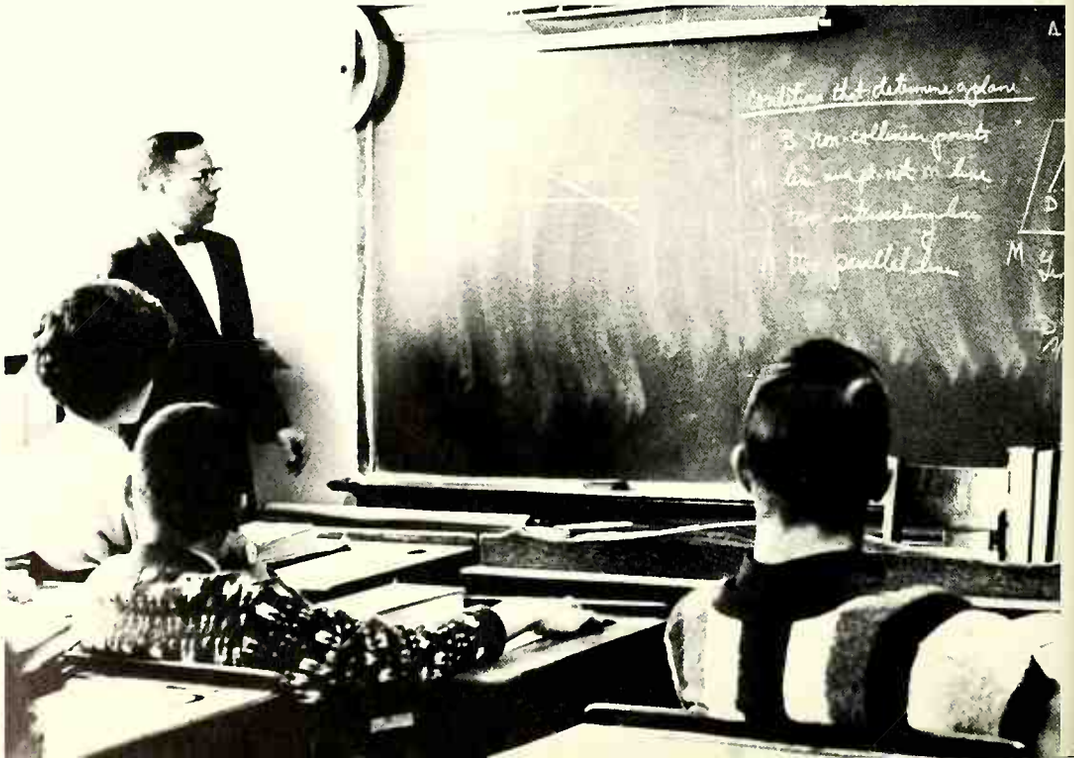
lower right
In physical science class Larry Norwood demonstrates operation of a basic engine. Physical science affords a more general and practical view of chemistry and physics than is taught in the specialized courses.











Instilling World Perspectives; Fundamentals of Reasoning

upper left

Dianne Davis relates an important place in history as Stan Vandrey indicates the site on a map. To supplement United States history and economic material, students used maps to think graphically.

Al Ehnes consults the Wall Street Journal to find latest price of IBM stocks. In order to understand the stock market, a basis of United States economy, economics students were required to complete stock market projects, which consisted of purchasing two stocks, keeping abreast of current price fluctuation and analyzing the company's business according to stock price changes.

upper center right

Mr. Ciciora enriches his world history text with film strips of current and past events. In civics and world history visual aids are vital to complete understanding. This year, coinciding with world conditions, world history classes completed a unit on communism in order to learn to cope with this system.

By the time a student has enrolled in senior math, a test on Friday has become part of his weekly routine. These tests covered the material presented that particular week and pointed out any weakness in the learning process. The topics covered in senior math include trigonometry and analytic geometry.

To motivate the math-gifted students an honors geometry program is taught by Mr. Maiers. In these classes the emphasis was on individual study rather than teacher instruction. The geometry course included, in addition to the regular curriculum, space geometry, logic, and extra projects.

lower left

This year in honor's algebra Mr. Ellis taught through a new approach and a different book. The emphasis was on the retention of ideas.

English and Foreign Language Afford Insight into Cultures

upper left

Again this year VHS offered a three year German program. Students in German 5 and 6 studied German history in the native language to give them background of the country. Since much grammar and composition is acquired through conversation, ability in this skill is stressed in all German classes.

upper center

Paula Domke, Tom Eiler, and Terry Herman, second year Spanish students, practice Spanish conversation in panel groups. Beginning this year a third year of Spanish was added to the curriculum. This course is primarily a review of grammar and conversation.

upper right

Third year Latin student, Esther Powell, struggles through a chapter of Cicero. For the first time at VHS, a third year of Latin was offered consisting of Cicero and Virgil. After conquering the subjunctive case, second year pupils relive Caesar's Gallic Wars.

Miss Craig assists the sophomores in the writing of a theme. Emphasis this year in the English department was on original composition. Formerly referred to as grammar, the courses are now taught with the accent on original writing and the appreciation of the fundamentals of usage.

Larry Thompson presents a speech to the class who in turn will make a constructive criticism of the speech. Besides writing, a major part of English is speaking. Under speech teacher, Mr. James Bailey, students present many short speeches, learn to recite orally, and become relaxed before an audience.

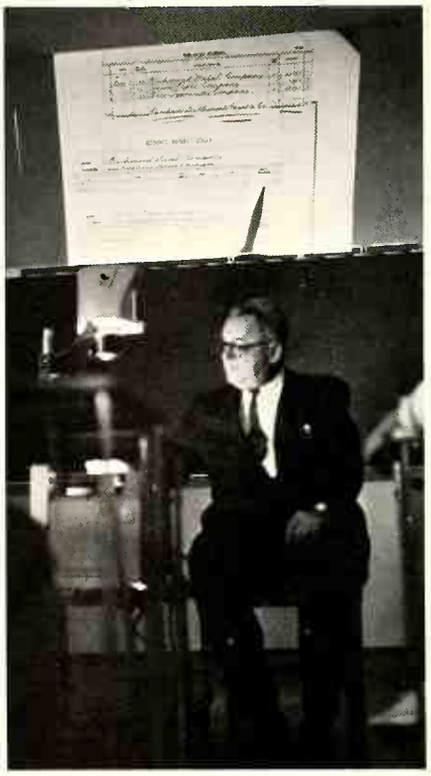
Roberta West, rushing to meet her term paper deadline, struggles through a mountain of information to obtain a few words she can use in her paper. Senior composition this year was taught on the college level, starting with punctuation for meaning, advancing to single paragraph themes, then to short critiques, and climaxing with a formal, footnoted term paper. Senior literature was oriented toward critical analysis with philosophic overtones and toward the writing of critical book reviews.

lower right

An essential part of all English courses is work in the library and all students at VHS are given an introductory course in its use. Assisting the students in their library work was Miss Weems, who served as an interim librarian until the regular librarian, Mr. Gardin arrived in December.

Essentials—Proficiency, Aptness

Expressions of Creative Minds



upper left

To make the explanation of complicated bookkeeping journals, cash receipts, and ledgers clearer, Mr. Wiggins uses the overhead projector, a new piece of equipment that projects a certain page onto a screen in the front of the room. Bookkeeping class introduces those students interested in a business career to the more internal functions of busines.

Beginning this year, Mrs. Calzacorto is teaching the girls enrolled in shorthand a newer form of the Gregg system. This progressive step was made to keep VHS graduates among the better prepared business students. Mrs. Calzacorto also teaches Business English, a specialized course concerned with punctuation and language usage in business letters and forms.

upper center right

Another basic part of any business education is the skill of typing. Two years of typing are offered, the first year emphasizes skills, the second advances to more business-like forms and letters. So that the typists will have experience on all types of machines, students are taught on both manual and electric typewriters.

upper right

Mr. Wiggins explains the different types of contracts one enters into each day. He also teaches various types of law that is applicable to everyday problems. To help students become better acquainted with these laws, lawyers are brought to the class to tell about actual trial cases.

middle center right

One of the elective projects for art class is making posters for the Oasis bazaar, and this year Judy Bowman was awarded first prize in this competition. These posters were used to advertise the Christmas bazaar held at St. Paul's Catholic Church by the Catholic women.

middle right

Outling the subject with yarn, Dick Church and Candy Thorgren work on the first step of the composition of their picture. Later colored pebbles will be used to add the details of the scene.

lower left

Zora Parkevich puts a piece of work on the board as a model and goal for other students. The best examples of each project are put on the bulletin board so that all may learn from other's efforts.

lower right

John Rigg, Delmar Lawrence, and Fred Strietelmeier work on their individual art projects. Partly a method of relaxation, but more important, art is a means of self-expression.

Dexterous hands are essential while practicing a skill which will be useful in the care and raising of a family. Girls in home economics learn the many different talents for a homemaker's career.

Priscilla Ponader and Diana Brown use Betty Johnson as a "working model" during their study of bandaging. Besides learning first aid, girls in home nursing learn how to fight common childhood diseases and how to take care of a baby correctly.

upper right
Working in their individual unit in the home economics kitchen Carolyn Risner, Jean Graham, and Barbara Powell prepare cookies as part of their foods course. In first year foods the girls learn to cook each part of the meal; and, in advanced foods, they learn to plan menus, to entertain informally, and to experiment with foreign dishes.

middle center right
Richard Boron, a mechanical drawing student concentrates on the task before him. Mr. Rhoda teaches his pupils how to read architectural blueprints, which will be useful whether the boy is going into an architectural career or not.

middle right
Harold Thompson and Herb Brandenburg confer on a drawing assignment. Different projects are given during the year to perfect deftness in machine shop blueprint reading.

lower left
Sparks flying, Ken Blaney and Al Ludington are engrossed in welding as a part of their year's project. The purpose of machine shop is to teach boys how to work with their hands as well as with their minds. All machine shop students are required to complete a project such as a chest of drawers, a gunrack, or a coffee table.

lower right
John Fischer and John Slingerland inspect a lathe as part of learning the operation and care of industrial equipment. Not only are projects taught, but the maintenance of the machines is stressed.

Aiding America's Youth, Developing Responsible Citizens

upper left

Keeping a growing body in good physical condition, a group of boys engage in a spirited game of basketball during a physical education class. Besides learning the fundamentals of basketball, the boys are instructed by Mr. Sweet in football, baseball, track, tumbling, and acrobatics.

upper center

In order for girls to become more healthy and better fit as citizens, Mrs. Aikin offers a wide variety of sports, one of which is volleyball. In her physical education class, she also instructs the girls in various exercises as well as the fundamentals of archery and speedball.

upper right

Part of the physical education program includes various relays from the many different sports. Also included is instruction of the basic military maneuvers and their application.

Wayne Clendenin practices his newly learned method of artificial respiration on Ray Hewlett. Besides learning anatomy and body care, the students learn major muscles. Health and safety, a required course at VHS, acquaints the students with various first aid methods in case of an emergency.

lower center right

Mr. Sweet, with the help of student teacher Mr. Jones, points out a major organ of the body. Besides anatomy, the students also learn proper body care.

middle right

Rick Sacks and Betty Stinehfield look over Clark Eaton's shoulder as Mr. Stokes points out the various parts of the driver's training car. The purpose of driver's training is to make teen-agers more responsible and better informed drivers.

lower right

Leaving the school for their regular session of the "classroom on wheels," Mr. Stokes teaches the techniques and rules of safe driving. Once a week each student has class and drives in the dual control car, made available by Dolembo Chevrolet.

VHS Band Upholds the School Tradition of Excellence

upper center left
Mr. Miller, band director, looks over the collection of VHS awards, trophies, and plaques accumulated over the years. The concert bands have claimed first place awards in the NISBOVA contest for the last five years. The NISBOVA also sponsors a solo and ensemble contest in which the VHS band members earn individual recognition for their accomplishments.

Knowledge through Cooperation

Extra-curricular activities at VHS generate a spirit of good will and cooperation throughout each student's school life. In an atmosphere of enthusiasm and fellowship each Valparaiso High School club both serves the school and develops the individual in selflessness. Working with fellow members, each student learns how to better associate with people and is afforded the opportunity to make many new acquaintances.

Helping others, cheering the team, ushering, acting, painting, working and being a part are a few of the joys and duties the students display in a voluntary air of companionship. Yet, extra-curricular activities include more than fun. They include Knowledge through Cooperation.

Student Council Serves as Governing Body of VHS

upper center left
Linda Herman, GAA president, presents a petition to council president Mike Carlin. One of the major functions of the Student Council as the governing body of VHS is to grant extra curricular activities permission to hold additional activities. The petition is signed by the principals, passed by two-thirds vote of representatives present at that particular meeting, and finally signed by the president.

Strong Mind, Strong Body

A strong mind in a strong body is the aim of Valparaiso High School's athletic department. For every athlete, grueling preparation is necessary to obtain his ultimate potential and excellence in his particular field.

The will to succeed is the ingenerate instinct which drives the athlete to triumph. The spirit of competition provides the extra thrust which carries the ball over the goal line or forces the final surge which breaks the tape.

Team effort unites the players and coaches in the common goal to win. Sportmanship aids the individuals to grow in ideals.

Spirit unites the school, fans and players alike, toward the best efforts of all.

Swimmers Host and Win Sectional

upper left
Bob Fritts races the "hundred-yard butterfly" in a practice run at the YMCA. The medley relay team, consisting of Bob Fritts, Bob Johnson, Vic Vaughn, and John McAfee, also set a new school record.

Jim Bailey, the new swim coach, calculates the statistics of each swimmer after a practice.

upper right
Viking diver Randy Reuter executes a "reverse tuck." Don Dodds, Dave Swihart, and Randy Rueter were the VHS divers this season. Because all three are underclassmen, all will return next year.

middle center right
Bob Johnson takes a welcome breath of air after a strenuous heat. This year he set new school records in the forty-yard, fifty-yard, and hundred-yard freestyle events. Bob placed third in the fifty-yard freestyle at state. His three and one half points placed Valparaiso fifteenth in the meet.

lower center right
VHS swimmers strain for distance as the starting gun goes off. Valparaiso won the sectional held at the Valparaiso University pool, qualifying nine boys for state.

lower right
A.A.U. official Dave Happel explains to Randy Rueter the fine points of swim officiating. Dave is in charge of starting, timing, and recording the scores made by each swimmer.

VHS Marches to Sectional, Regional, and Semi-State

upper left
Mr. Sweet gestures emphatically while explaining a crucial play to the team during a Viking time out. Under the coaching of Mr. Sweet, the basketball team attained an 18-9 season.

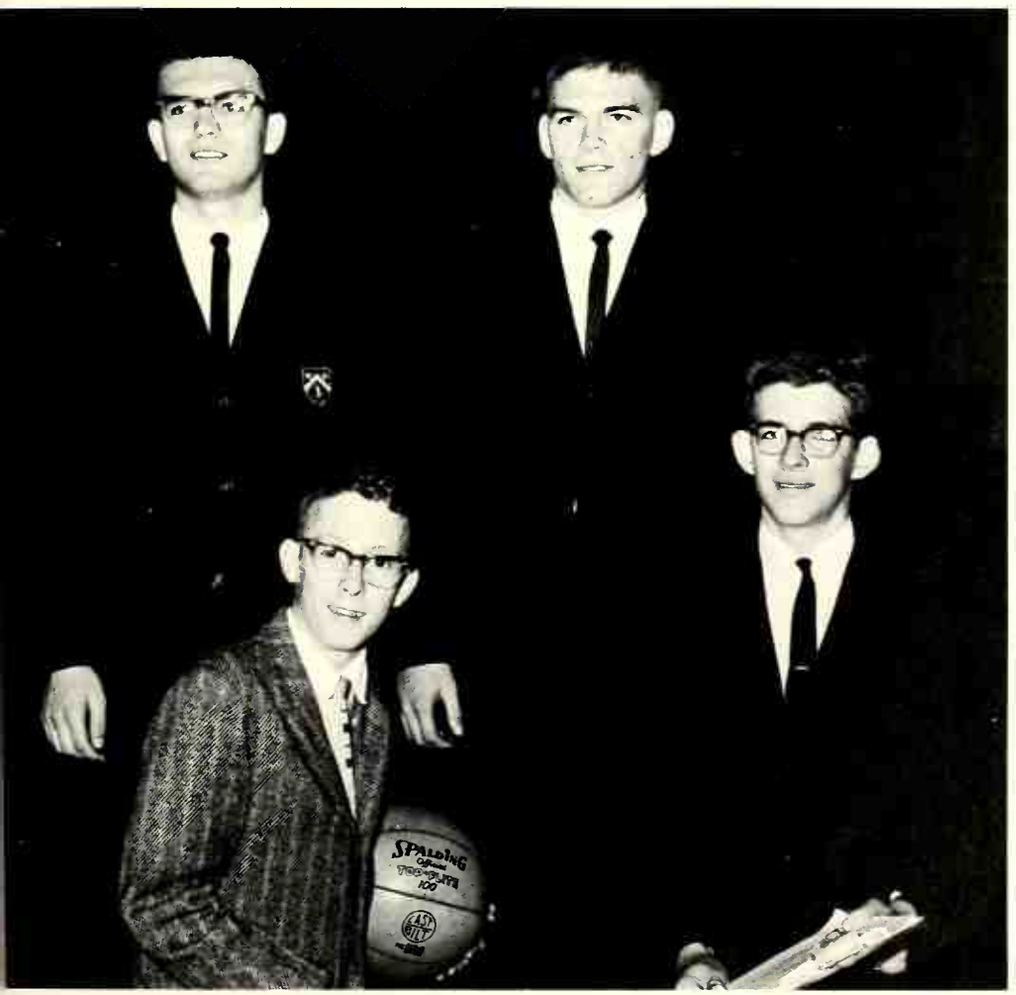
Mike O'Neill shoots a jump shot during an important conference game with the Tolleston Raiders. The Viking team later tied Tolleston for second place in the NIHSC conference.

upper center right
Appearing to be airborne, Ralph "Boo" Krieger fights for a rebound. In most of the games this season VHS has out-rebounded its opponents.

upper right
Mr. Sweet discusses a play with Tom Hampson and Mike O'Neill. This season sophomore Tom Hampson was top rebounder and junior Mike O'Neill was high scorer. The two boys are wearing this year's new warm-ups.



middle left
Mr. Sweet's magic slate is the center of attention as the coach graphically illustrates a play. Mr. Sweet used his specially designed slate to devise plays both during games and time outs.

lower left
The score is tied, the first half is almost over, and the crowd anxiously waits to see who will get jump ball.

lower right
Working hard throughout the basketball season are (left) Larry Rosenbaum and Rich Edwards, managers, and (right) Scott Vickers and Randy Zulich, statisticians.

After 31 Years of Regional Defeat, the Vikings Are Champs

upper right
Tom Eiler, Steve Seelig, Paul Frye, and Tom Hampson practice freethrows during noon hour. Mr. Sweet required every basketball player to shoot 100 each noon. This year Mike Carlin set a new freethrow record by making 219 consecutively. The total team average is .791 which is believed to be a national freethrow record.

upper center right
Coach Ciciora instructs the three senior varsity teammates Mike Carlin, Tom Copper, and Ralph Krieger in weight lifting. This was also an important phase of basketball summer training.

upper right
At last Vikings celebrate regional victory! To qualify for regional competition, Valpo won the Chesterton sectional — the twenty-second and eighth consecutive victory. This was the first year VHS participated in the regional at Logansport.

This year, for the first time, Valpo has a sophomore basketball team. It consisted of those boys who did not make the official JV team and was under the direction of Tom Stokes. Our sophomore team played JV teams from other schools.

lower left
Under Coach Ciciora the JV team closed the season with a 10-10 record. These boys have shown much promise and will be a big asset to next year's varsity team.

lower right
The varsity team, a relatively young team with two sophomores, five juniors, and only three seniors, gave VHS another traditionally successful season.

Intramurals Provide Competition for Basketball Aspirants

upper left
Ken Sommers takes aim as he prepares to shoot a free throw during an intramural game. The intramural league was created to give any boy an oportunity to take part in supervised basketball.

Part of one of eight intramural teams sit along the sidelines watching their teammates play and waiting their chance to get into action. This year sixty-four boys participated in the intramural program.

upper right
Scott Vickers, a team captain, breaks away for a quick basket as the opposing intramural team hustles back on defense.

lower left
Mr. Ellis calls a play during one of the intramural contests. Assisting Mr. Ellis as referees were Knoefel Jones, Jim Donley, and Bud Heimberg, all former VHS students and physical education students at Valparaiso University.

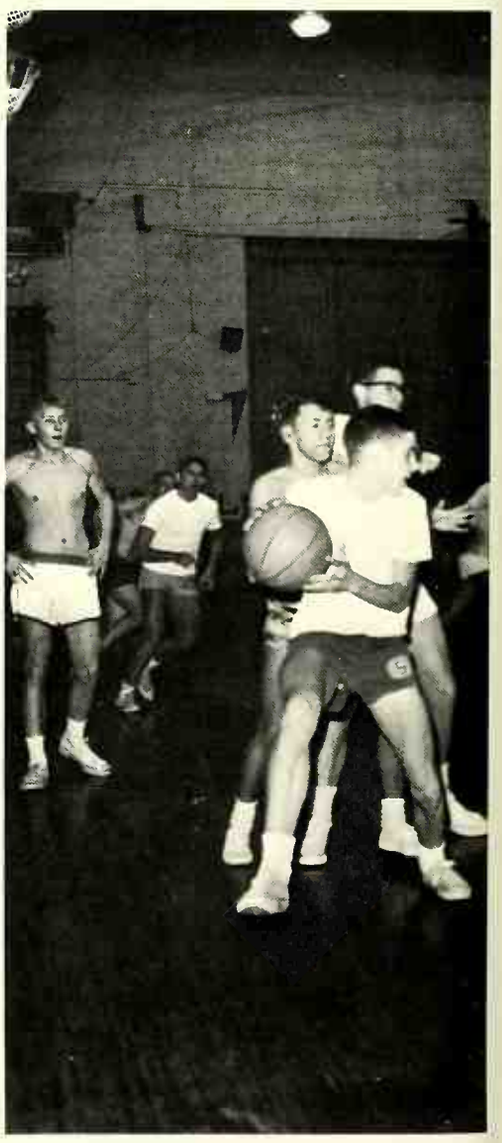
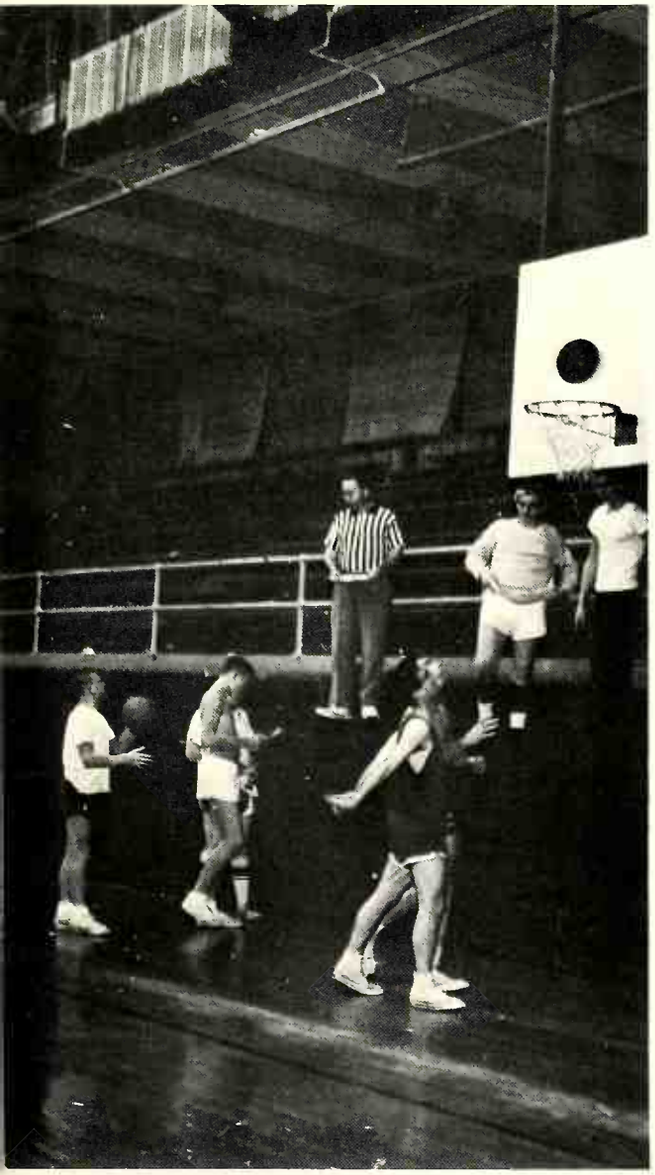
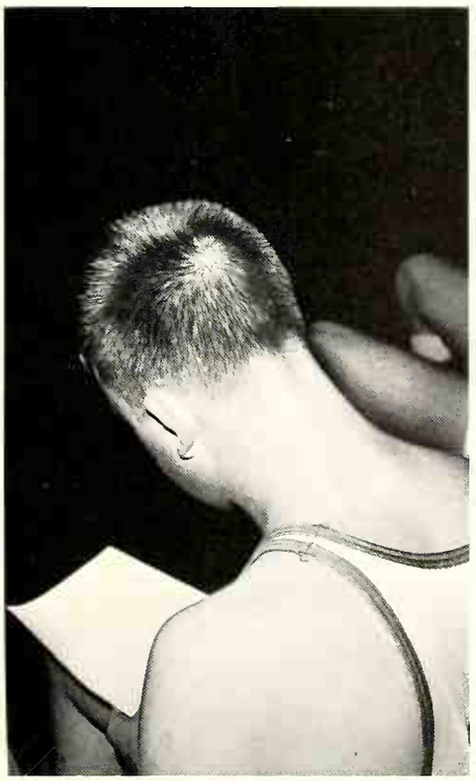
Ron Freeman fights for the ball during an especially active game. The climax of the intramural season was a tourney deciding the championship team.

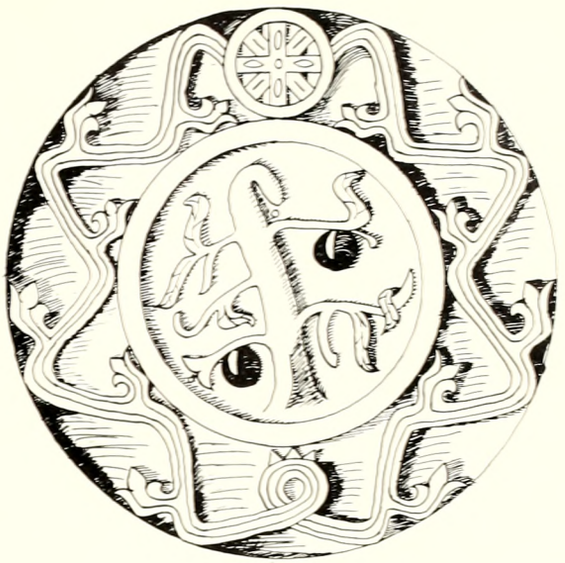
lower center right
Members of a team shoot baskets during a pregame warm-up under the supervision of Mr. Ellis, the primary motivator and head of the intramural system.

lower right
In his official capacity as a scorekeeper for one of the games, Denny Babcock records baskets, free throws, and fouls made by the two contesting teams.









"Friendship is a Sheltering Tree"

Development of the versatile person is a vital branch of Valparaiso's educational system. The VHS student not only learns mathematical formulas and correct sentence syntax, but also he associates daily with other people. For him this association reveals insights into human nature. He matures as an individual.

Cooperation of friends and acquaintances within the spirit of the school is also a fundamental of education. Varied companionships facilitate relaxed society with others. Casual company promotes ease in groups.

As the past directs him in present stituations, friendships formed in high school will guide the VHS student in coming relationships. The future is promising to the friend who, on common ground, greets and knows the world's inhabitants.

Seniors Today, Leaders Tomorrow

Generating a sense of strength, the class of 1964 made the most of their last high school year. With plans of post-high school education firmly fixed in the minds of most seniors, they put the finishing touches on their basic schooling. Besides making plans for further education, many seniors were thinking about jobs during the summer to add to the family finances and to gain experience in another type of environment. Led by their class officers, Steve Kautz, president; Ed Whitton, vice-president; Doris Toelke, secretary; and Barb Engel, treasurer; the seniors finished what had been an exciting and rewarding high school education and looked forward to an even more rewarding and vastly different future.

1963-64 Year Sees Composition of VHS Seal

This year, through the profits of the 1961, 1962, and 1963 VALENIAN staffs, the 1964 staff had an official school seal of Valparaiso High School designed by an artist of Herff-Jones Company of Indianapolis and made into embossing dies by the Durand Manufacturing Company.

The Viking head on the shield was originally used on the school flag and was designed for use on class rings and stationary by Mitch Vogel of the Herff-Jones Company in 1955. The torch is symbolic of citizenship; the open book, of learning. The laurel leaves depict achievement; the oak leaves, strength. The first official class was graduated from Valparaiso in 1874.

Juniors Gain Prestige through Prom

Starting their third year at VHS, the juniors began to think about the future after graduation. Accordingly, college-bound students enrolled in United States history, speech, American literature, algebra 3 and 4, chemistry, and a foreign language. Those planning a business or domestic career enrolled in advanced business, home economics, and industrial arts courses.

The main topic of conversation among the junior class officers, Janet Brown, president; Bob Johnson, vice-president; Don Horan, treasurer; and Lynn Anderson, secretary; was the appointment of committees for the prom.

Sophomores Become Accustomed to Environment

During the first year of high school life, the typical sophomore schedule included world history, geometry, English, a foreign language, and physical education. The other courses offered to sophomores were industrial arts, mechanical drawing, home economics, and health and safety.

After being separated into different junior high schools for one year due to the introduction of the 6-3-3 system in 1962, the sophomores reunited under the leadership of their officers, Tom Eiler, president; Jim Siewin, vice-president; Mary Heinold, secretary; and Linda Arnold, treasurer. As a class they chose their class rings, decorated the gym for commencement, and supported the school's clubs and teams.

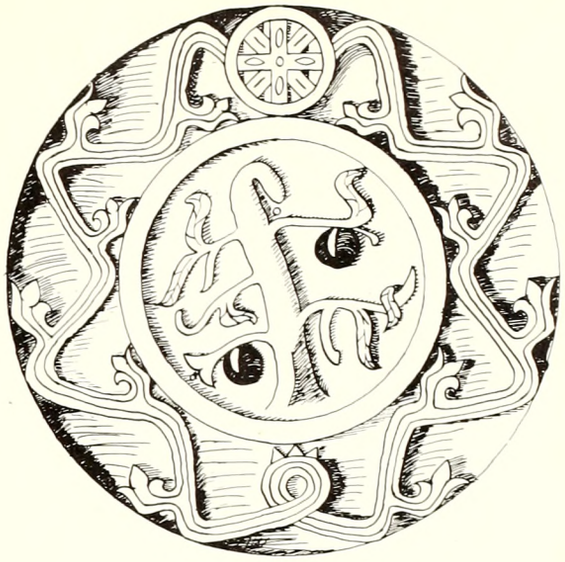
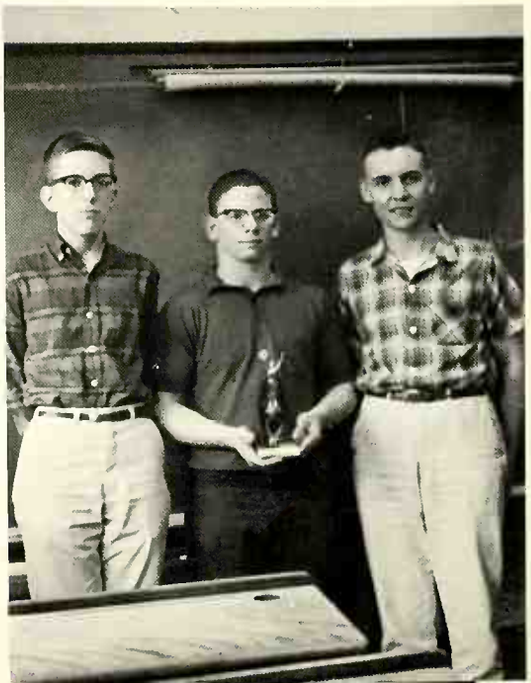
Sophomores use out of class time to good advantage. The study hall, room 103, is the scene of great accomplishments(?)



The Tree of Knowledge Continues to Mature

As winter melts into spring, another cycle of learning is completed. Baseball and its aspirants, track and its stars, the prom and its sparkle comprise a spring season that will long be remembered. In the hectic few weeks preceding the close of school, final exams confront the veteran senior as well as the novice sophomore. Yet, the tension of exams is quickly forgotten in the excitement of graduation. For VHS seniors, commencement marks the beginning of a new life. Although veterans of the high school realm, they are now entrusted to the world as novices. For juniors, a year of added responsibility and leadership awaits. Sophomores prepare to become dependable upperclassmen. In the fall a new class will be ushered in. The cycle of learning will begin again. The tree of knowledge will continue to grow and mature.



Sadie Hawkins Marks End of Winter and Beginning of Spring
